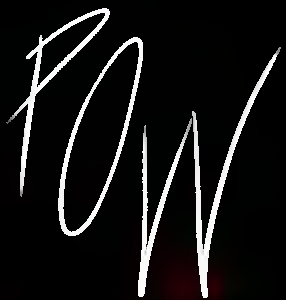
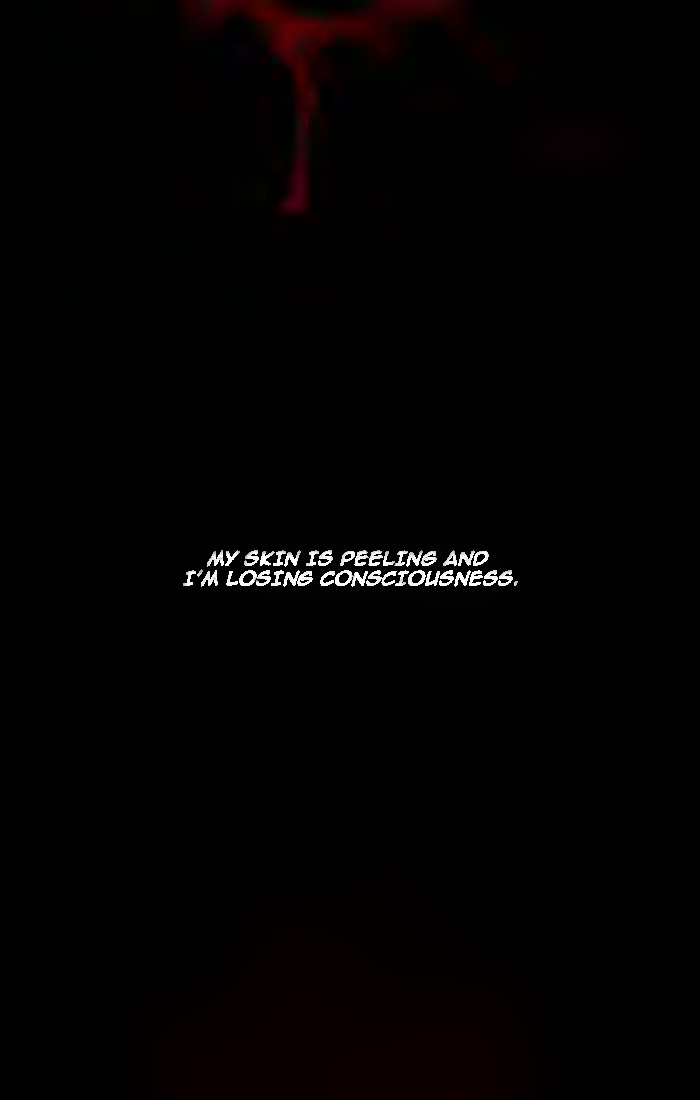
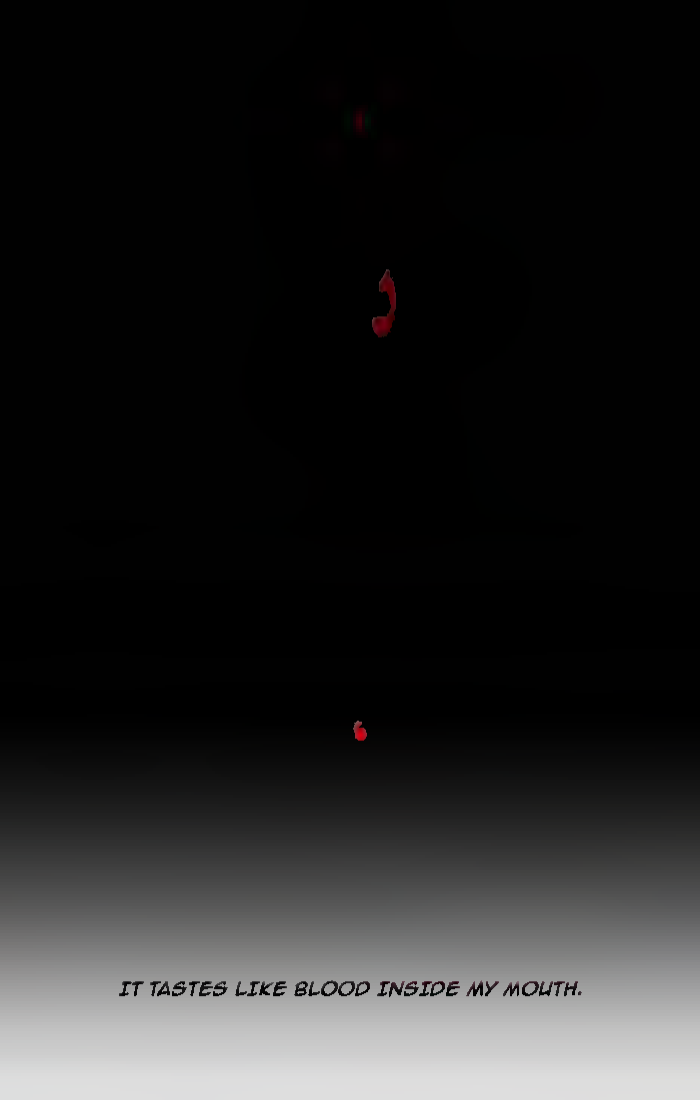
A STONE FLIES AT ME.



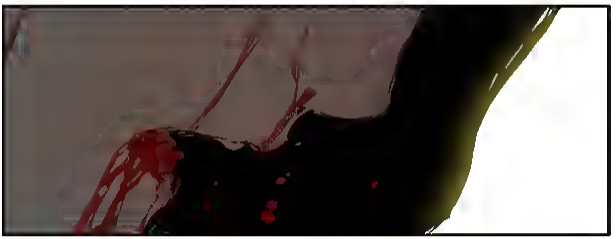


MY SKIN IS PEELING AND
I'M LOSING CONSCIOUSNESS.

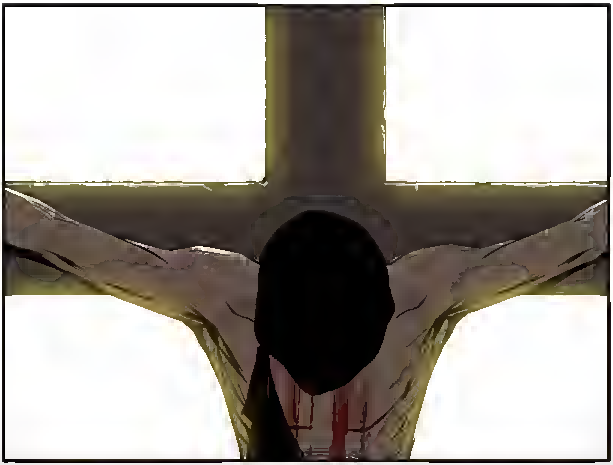


IT TASTES LIKE BLOOD INSIDE MY MOUTH.

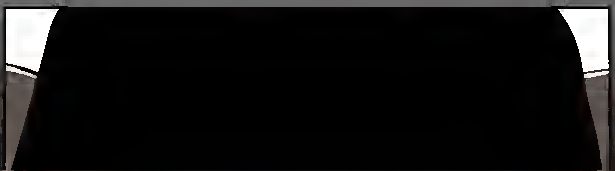
HOT BLOOD FLOWS INTO MY THROAT FROM MY NOSE.



WHAT SCARES ME ISN'T THE PAIN IN MY BONES AND SKIN.



IT'S UNAWARENESS OF WHERE STONES WOULD COME FROM.



I REMEMBERED A STORY.

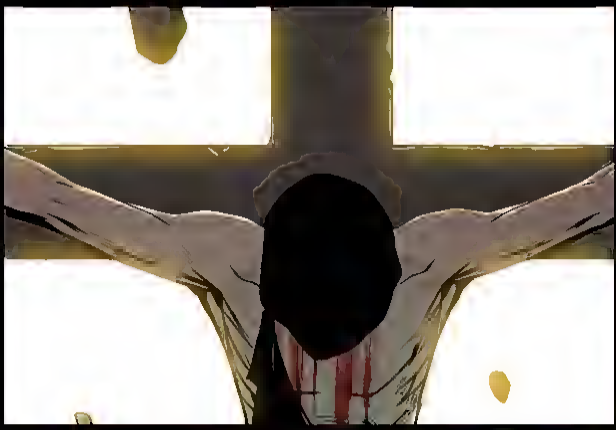
THERE WAS A LIBERTINE WHO SPENT ALL OF THE WILL FROM HIS PARENTS, AND WAS LEFT ALONE WITH JUST A JACKET.

HE SAW A SWALLOW BEFORE THE SUMMER AND THOUGHT, "I DON'T NEED MY JACKET ANY MORE BECAUSE THE SUMMER IS HERE."

SO, HE SOLD HIS JACKET RIGHT AWAY, BUT THE WEATHER BECAME COLD AGAIN.

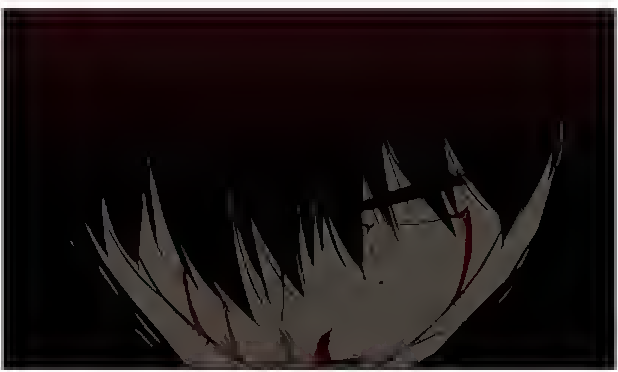
ONE DAY, HE SAW THE FROZEN SWALLOW AND SAID, "POOR LITTLE THING. YOU'VE KILLED BOTH YOU AND I."

I THOUGHT THAT'S EXACTLY WHAT I WAS LIKE.



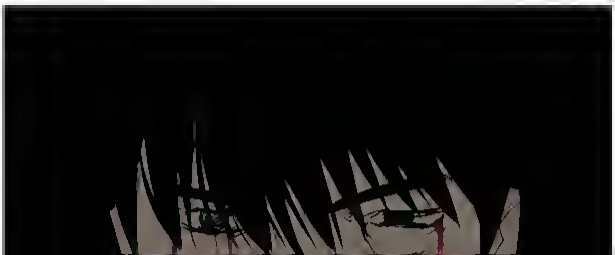
EVEN IF I CAN FLY IN THE AIR FOR A BIT,
A MERE SLAVE LIKE ME CAN'T BRING THE SUMMER.

IT WAS RIDICULOUS OF ME TO THINK OF A STORY WHEN I WAS ABOUT TO DIE.



LET'S THINK THAT ALL THOSE CURSES AND VIOLENCE AGAINST ME IS WHAT I GET FOR HAVING SUCH A GREAT TALENT OF STORY-TELLING.

THEN, AESOP FELT MUCH BETTER.



THE SCENT OF DEATH DOESN'T FEEL UNFAMILIAR ANYMORE.
